

Quality Improvement and Health Care Education

Delivering a Quality Improvement Curriculum

Sponsored by NHS Education for Scotland, The Scottish Funding Council, Scotland's Colleges and Universities Scotland

This event provides an opportunity for NHSScotland to continue to work with academic staff, Colleges, professional bodies and the research community to consider together how to embed Quality Improvement into the undergraduate and postgraduate curricula.

The focus will be on exploring the ways in which the NHSS and educational institutions can develop learning opportunities and resources which can support the ambitions outlined in the NHSScotland Quality Strategy.

Participants

This event will bring together staff responsible for planning and designing health care education and training programmes delivered in Colleges, Universities and the Health Boards.

Participants will be able to learn about current activities through presentations, workshops and exhibits and there will be opportunity to debate how we can further support the drive for continuous Quality Improvement through teaching, learning and research.

Presentations

Keynote Speakers include:

- Jason Leitch, National Clinical Lead for Safety and Quality at Scottish Government
- Brian Durward, Director of Educational Development at NHS Education for Scotland

Workshops

Workshop themes will include developing Quality Improvement curricula, learning from research, supporting communities of practice, effective knowledge management and innovation in delivering Quality Improvement learning.
